We're here because we care

Laurence Geller CBE

I created Loveday when I couldn't find the calibre of care I wanted for my own parents. Now, we want to enhance and enrich your life, too.

Having started my career as a chef and rising through every level of the hospitality industry before owning luxury hotels such as Four Seasons and Ritz-Carlton, hospitality is in my blood. My passion lies in creating exceptional experiences where people feel genuinely valued and cared for.

When both my parents were diagnosed with dementia, I was frustrated that I couldn't find the level of personalised care, attention and service that would enhance their quality of life and give me peace of mind. That realisation led me to create Loveday Chelsea Court Place, our pioneering residence that blended Michelin-style hospitality with personalised care. As the first of its kind, the overwhelmingly positive reactions from Members and their loved ones confirmed this was my true calling. I wanted to drive meaningful change in the industry and make a real difference in people's lives. As I see the good that Loveday does every day for so many, my passion and commitment grows stronger daily.

Giving back has always been a core part of my mission. I have had the privilege of supporting a variety of causes, from raising awareness of dementia research to improving care for older adults. I am especially proud of my work as an Ambassador with the Alzheimer's Society and with the Geller Commission of Dementia Care, where I have fundraised, campaigned for better care standards and worked ceaselessly to increase public understanding of dementia. It has also been an honour to support multiple initiatives such as The Care Sector Fundraising Ball, which raises vital funds for dementia carers.

As Chancellor of the University of West London, I founded the Geller Institute of Ageing and Memory, established and funded the first Master's in Dementia Studies while continuing to support annual nursing scholarships.

My commitment to excellence is the foundation of who we are as a team. At Loveday, we take the time to truly understand each Member, build meaningful connections with their families and loved ones and create experiences that elevate the everyday.

Every detail is thoughtfully designed to enrich our Members' lives with the unparalleled level of care, dignity, respect and hospitality they deserve.

It is our mission and privilege to always go Above and Beyond in everything we do. Simply stated, the Loveday team is dedicated and privileged to make lives better for those with care needs, their families and their loved ones. That's what we do. That's what we are.

It would be our honour for you to call Loveday Esher your home. I look forward to welcoming you soon.

With kind regards,

LAURENCE GELLER CBE
Chairman, CEO and Co-Founder
